THE SUGAR RATION.

YET another reduction in the sugar ration of householders and others has been made by order of the Minister for Supplies, to begin for householders on Saturday, 4th April, and for other institutions the reduction comes into operation on Wednesday. The Government in making this reduction have, in our opinion, acted wisely, and in so doing are making an effort to conserve the supplies still in stock. The shortage of fertilizers this season for the sowing of the beet crop is bound to have an adverse effect on the acreage sown, with a consequent diminution in the amount of beet that may be brought to the factories for pulping next season. But the beet shortage is not the only difficulty with which they may have to contend, because as time goes on and if the present emergency continues, the difficulties in replacement of machinery and the procurement of new parts must become more acute. Speaking in Dublin the other night, Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Finance, foreshadowed a sugarless Ireland if the present emergency continues. But the want of sugar will not be the least of our ills, if it were we should have little cause to grumble. If we are unable to keep our factories going for the want of supplies it will mean unemployment for a great many people and consequent suffering for those dependent on them. Fortunately, things have not come to that pass yet, and all can do their part by helping the tillage campaign and urging land holders to sow more wheat, beet, barley, potatoes and oats, etc. On Tuesday night over the radio, Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, broadcast a final appeal for the sowing of spring wheat, the time for which is now rapidly drawing to a close. Every hour and every man at our disposal must be utilised, he declared, if we are to avert starvation and want. These are ominous words and we trust they will be heartened to by those who have neglected or are neglecting to put forth their best efforts. On them the safety and happiness and security from want of our people depends, and we hope they will rise to the occasion and work strenuously to secure that the requisite amount of wheat and other necessary crops are sown now before it is too late.

L. D. F. NOTES.

It seems that appealing to the men between the ages of 18 and 35 years to join the Local Defence Force is almost a waste of time. Recruits are coming in at the rate of two or three per week, but that only helps to make the Instructors' work more arduous. Whereas if thirty or forty men would join together, they could be efficiently trained in one-third of the time.

Easter Week is approaching, the twenty-sixth anniversary of that glorious Battle for Ireland in 1916. We are now in training for the same fight. Who knows when the same battle may burst upon us. Remember the noble deeds of twenty-six years ago, and after. Don't let this anniversary pass without joining the goodly company of those who are in training to fight for Ireland.

"Coward" is a term that no man would wish to have placed beside his name. What will be the verdict of history on the men of to-day? Is the present generation grown decadent and lacking in patriotism, and will future generations, under the heel of an oppressor, curse the indifference of those who, with a glorious chance to defend and uphold the honour of Ireland, preferred disgrace and oppression?

Now is the time to make a choice. In a short time there will be no choice to make, only the compulsory pick and shovel of the labour gangs. It is up to every man to choose between that and the voluntary rifle of the Local Defence Force. Where is your name going to appear—on the voluntary L.D.F. Roll of Honour or the compulsory lists? Make your choice now.

A word of advice also to those members of the L.D.F. who have fallen away from their parades. Unless these men show their dormant interest soon, they shall have to revert to the ranks of those whose names will grace the compulsory lists. The Group is better off without such men on its roll; they are a hindrance rather than an asset to a military body. Now is the time for such members to make their choice. Soon it may be too late.

Next General Parade will be on Tuesday next, April 7th, at 8.30 p.m. The last batch of measurements for the new uniforms will be taken at that parade.

L. S. F. NOTES.

The outlook is black, but so far is not desperate. There is yet time to prepare for anything that may engulf us. But there is not an hour to lose. Laxity and love of ease still paralyse our efforts. Thousands have not yet awakened to the immensity of the task. Letting someone else do the job is a common fault. There are many who think that it will be time enough to do their bit when the blow falls, or who think that "to-morrow will do." To-morrow won't do. That lackadaisical "let's put off until to-morrow" attitude has wasted too much precious time and opportunity already. How often have you been guilty of postponing a difficult job or an untoward decision until "to-morrow." But of course that promised "to-morrow" never comes. Make "Do it now" your motto before you get caught in that trap.

It would be well here to remind all members that the weekly parade is held each Thursday night in the L.D.F.-L.S.F. Hall at 9 o'clock. The attendance at parades should be much better. There are still too many absentees.

TUAM COMMERCIAL GOLF CLUB OPEN COMPETITION.

On Sunday last the Club held its first competition, 18 holes stroke, which was won by Mr. John Joyce with a score of 67 nett. The prize was a box of golf balls (Dunlop 65).

The course was in lovely playing condition, the greens being particularly good.

Those wishing to join the Club should send in their names very soon as competitions are starting early.

The Club will hold its third annual dance in the Wool Stores on April 26th, with a special engagement of Kenny's Dance Orchestra, Tullamore (8 pieces), and catering by a specially arranged committee of ladies. Wines and liqueurs by Messrs. Cahill and Co., Bishop Street, Tuam.

CLANN NA TALMHAN MEETING.

A meeting of Clann na Talmhan will be held in the Town Hall, Tuam, on Sunday, April 5th, at 1 p.m.

DUBLIN LETTER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

I see it suggested that the school leaving age will be increased to fifteen years. This is a step in the right direction and it is after time for it to be enacted as the city swarms with youngsters roaming aimlessly about. Even with the increased school leaving age, I have grave doubts that a stop will be put to this conduct unless some clear thinking and planning are done to absorb our youth and mould them into useful citizens instead of bringing them up as idlers, if not worse. From high and low authorities we hear sarcastic comments as to the conduct of young people and their lack of civic pride. How can young or old have civic pride when they are denied the right to earn a living? It is not the youth that should be blamed but the cruel, heartless system under which business is conducted in this country.

When the flower of our youth can only look forward to secure some trifling employment in order to qualify for the dole, then it is not the youth but the grinding slave system that is the root evil. We must not overlook the fact that the dole is a sort of insurance for those who are unable to secure continuous employment, but when the dread fear of facing unemployment stares young and old in the face week after week, it becomes a farce and a tragedy. The country is in a raw state and it requires manual labour to tone up the look of things. Why not provide the work, reproductive work, and make everyone who lose their jobs go and do the work and pay them well for it? Let us stop the humbug and go on with the work; it is there to be done and we make serfs of young and old by hanging about in an endeavour to secure the dole.

We are the most peculiar people on God's earth. We take our tastes from the hoardings and when the hoardings fail us, we turn to the price as an index of quality. The poor sale of oranges in the city lately is a clear case to prove that. When it was announced that a cargo was on its way, orders were taken in advance without prices being mentioned and it was fully expected that a few of the leading houses would capture the whole cargo and that oranges would be at least one shilling each. The Government stepped in and fixed the price at a fair level, with the result that good oranges are meeting with a bad sale at around twopence halfpenny each. Had they been a shilling each they would be cleared out in a short time. A year ago a cargo came in and the vendors went panicky and paid extravagant prices for them. Some were retailed at as high as a shilling each and a cargo three times as large as the present one was sold out in a week. The Government deserves the height of credit for its action in regard to the cargoes of oranges.

Here is another case. Two years ago I took down to the West of Ireland a few pounds of tea that was publicly retailed in the city at two shillings a pound—as a matter of fact it was the same tea as was used in my home. I told the price in the West of Ireland. That finished its quality. It was no use. Now the turn came; some of that tea that was bought for two shillings a pound has been lately sold through the "Black Market" at up to and over one pound sterling for a pound of the tea and it has been declared "the real McCoy."

I'm giving you facts and figures and you can see for yourselves how we are slaves to a vicious system and little wonder Dublin and other cities are bulging with wealth amongst the racketeers, and the most of that wealth is roped off provincial areas.

★ ★ ★

We were all under the impression and we were told that when the Shannon Scheme would be functioning our imports of coal would drop to a low level and that the cities and provinces would have practically free light. Neither event took place and the imports of coal kept at a high level. Now we have got in a hundred ton generator at Poulaphouca to augment the power from the Shannon Scheme and even that will not reduce our coal imports or light up the provincial areas. Loose talk about the reduction of imports has done considerable damage to the development of native industries, and I have not the least doubt but our coal mines would to-day be in a prosperous condition were it not for the fact that we thought the Shannon Scheme would do everything for us—heat, power and light were to be had for the asking. It is not too late yet to turn around on our own resources and develop them and not have our youth going to foreign lands to earn a living whilst work remains to be done at home and very essential work, too.

HANDBALL NOTES.

By "An Liathróid."

In a doubles game played on last Sunday morning, A. O'Gara and M. Bailey had a nice win over D. Kelly and J. Brinn. Result, 21-18. O'Gara and Bailey excelled in positional play and dictated the trend of the exchanges almost throughout the game. It must be said, however, that Kelly has by no means detracted from his reputation, but I think he has not yet got into form. Of course, it's quite some time since he played before. Kelly was well supported by Brinn, who makes up for any other failings by his earnestness and determination. Should those four meet again, I don't think the game will be an easy thing—or will it? Anything can happen those times, you know.

In about six weeks hence the Club will celebrate its first anniversary. I think the committee will arrange a first class programme for that day. As for who the players will be on that day—I have no idea, but I imagine they will be pretty good. The club committee intend holding a meeting pretty soon; I do not know yet the exact date but it will appear in those Notes shortly.

A classic game has been arranged for next Sunday, so handball fans are in for a treat. The game starts at 1.30 p.m. So it's worth a journey to the alley on Sunday.. Easter Monday will again see some "dark horse" players in action. Happy Easter, members and fans!

THE BOYS' CLUB.

Not once but many times I have been asked by boys how they can join. Well, if I'm right—and I think I am—how to become a member of the Club was dealt with in this column on several occasions. But for the benefit of those who want to know how, here goes. Hand in your name, address, and, of course, the huge sum of sixpence entrance fee to any of the following committee members—M. Bailey, A. O'Gara, or L. Bergin. That's all there's to it. Simple, isn't it? The alley will be at your disposal any day and all day if you want it. Now that the long evenings are with us, what better pastime can you have than a good game of handball? You don't have to be an expert to join either, you know; everyone had to begin. If your school pals are not members already, tell them about it. That's all, boys!

Spotlight.

By "FLEX."

Hello, everybody! Here we are in Holy Week, so naturally there's nothing much doing in the entertainment line until next week. Mention of Holy Week reminds me of something I read about a very well known saint. Can you guess who it is? "He was small of stature, and had a slight deformity in one of his limbs. His eyes had a steady piercing gaze. His beard was long and thin, and he was an outstanding orator." One would hardly guess St. Paul immediately. The general conception of St. Paul is that he was very much a he-man in stature, I think. If you want to know more about him, you'll find it in a very interesting C.T.S. booklet called "The Manliness of St. Paul."

PICTURES.

Film fans are in for a big treat Easter Week. Music lovers have something in their line in "Bitter Sweet," with Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Basil Rathbone, as suave and sinister as ever, is paying a return visit in "A Date With Destiny." By the way, Rathbone must be easily the most convincing swordsman on the screen. Remember the duels with John Barrymore in "Romeo and Juliet," with Errol Flynn in "Robin Hood," and with Tyrone Power in "The Mark of Zorro." Incidentally, Rathbone is an expert fencer off the screen.

PLOTS.

I see by last week's Herald that there is some difficulty in getting plots. Many of our novelists are very often in the same predicament, but they just "borrow" them from other writers. Not a bad idea at that! Maybe plagiarism in more plots than those found between the covers of a book wouldn't be out of place in the present emergency.

BILLIARDS.

With the C.Y.M.S. Billiard Handicap entering the final stages, excitement is beginning to run high. The departure of Mr. Jim Loftus, who was a hot favourite, leaves the issue a very open affair. Incidentally, the C.Y.M.S. will suffer a big loss in losing their No. 1 man with a cue.

★ ★ ★

VARIETY.

The Premier Variety Company opens a nine nights run in the Town Hall on Saturday 4th inst. There will be a dance after the show on Easter Sunday night and the Sunday after.

★ ★ ★

ETIQUETTE.

Some people have rather remarkable ideas of etiquette in church. One may often see some immaculate young tailor's dummy rise to let some feeble old person totter his way to the middle of a seat. Obviously it never occurs to him that a little common or garden etiquette in letting an older person take his place would make him look more a gentleman than a bottle of brilliantine and a coloured scarf.

★ ★ ★

I was going to refer to that delightful game of throwing lighted cigarette ends in a crowd, but I don't believe it would be allowed under the heading of "Etiquette," any more than anybody who does such a thing should be allowed into the Cinema. And it's not always from the pit that those cigarette ends are thrown.

★ ★ ★

THE LALLY CAIRN.

I wonder does anyone know anything about that cairn just below the Fairy Mills. It's supposed to have something to do with the death of one of that famous old family, the Lallys of Tullinadaly. Maybe some kind reader could tell us something about it.

ASSES AND RUBBER.

I heard of a case recently when a donkey bit a child. No doubt the animal will be charged with ass-ault.

This rubber shortage is getting very "tyresome." It looks as if bike tyres will soon take the place of engagement rings. Can't you imagine the lucky young bride telling her friends: "Yes, my dear—a Dunlop roadster with diamond studs."

Oh, dear! You said it brother.
25/- if you know a nigger!
8/11 if you know a sucker!

ST. JARLATH CHORAL SOCIETY'S COMING PRODUCTION.

Music lovers will be glad to learn that the above Society has now completed arrangements for its forthcoming production of "The Pirates of Penzance." The opera will be produced at the Mall Cinema on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th of April and booking commences to-day.

Although one of the shorter of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, "The Pirates" has always held its popularity since its first presentation in December, 1879. It has been found most suitable for casting by our local Society and a place has been found for many of the old favourites.

The tenor parts will be sung by Messrs. Jimmy Wright and Brian Hoban, whose voices are known all over the West, and in the "Major General," Mr. Jack Eaton has a part ideally suited to his histrionic capabilities.

The Society is particularly lucky with its bass parts and its latest acquisition, Mr. Bernard Shaughnessy, who plays the Sergeant of Police, proves a worthy successor to our old favourites, Mr. Pete Roache and Mr. Paddy O'Rourke.

After his dignified acting as "Lord Edward," it is hard to imagine Mr. Joe McElgunn playing the part of a swashbuckling Pirate King, yet he appears to have been ideally cast, and in Miss Bernadette Canavan he has a Ruth who proves a more than competent aide in his "nefarious schemes."

The difficult soprano part will be sung by Miss Jo McGarry, who made her debut in "The Gondoliers," and other parts will be sung by Misses M. Brennan, T. Scully and B. Keane.

With a chorus of about fifty and a full orchestra, "The Pirates" should prove a most enjoyable production and one of a standard equal to that of the Society's presentations in other years.

G.A.A. NEWS.

Tuam Win Senior League Re-Play.

PLAYING with dash and determination, Tuam had a decisive victory over Mountbellew in the re-play of the drawn North Board Senior League Final at Menlough on Sunday.

A greasy ball and steady downpour of rain failed to rob the game of interest, and though football under such conditions could not be of a high standard, there were some rousing clashes during the hour. Tuam asserted their superiority early in the game, but at no time was their lead safe, as the Mountbellew side kept fighting to the last minute.

Tuam fielded out a strong team in which there were some startling positional changes. Jimmy Connolly, erstwhile full forward, took his place at the other end in front of the goalie, and Paddy Brett replaced him in the scoring line. A new partnership at centre-field, Sean Tansey and M. J. Burke, seems to have solved this problem, and Tansey ahs found his metier on the halfway line—even though he roams a lot.

Jimmy Connolly filled the full back position competently in the first half, but a tendency to move out left the goal uncovered at times. Gerry Maloney switched to this position in the second half and gave a tip-top performance. He is an ideal defender, strong and reliable, but his greatest asset is his power of recovery. A forward may get by him but never beats him. With Grealish—whom I consider the perfect centre-half—in front of him, and Wright, Corcoran, Connolly and Tighe on the flanks, Tuam had an almost unbeatable defence.

Whilst the backs played the right game for the weather—booting the ball on the run—the forwards showed up the old weakness of bunching together. Brett, however, "blitzed" his way through to pave the way for scores, and Birrell, until he retired, used to advantage all the tricks he has learned from long experience.

POINTS FROM THE GAME.

Tansey was hitting the high spots early on in the central sector and from a grand centre by him, T. J. Mooney opened with a minor for Tuam. Then Mountbellew were away in a fast passing move that, however, brought no score. Holding the pressure for a while, they overdid the short hand passing with a heavy ball and lost chances before they equalised. For a few minutes after they had the Tuam backs at sixes and sevens, and Mannion was the prime mover in a burst that brought a goal—a rather easy one. Tansey again put Tuam on the move and Tony Mongan fell victim to a flying tackle in front of the posts. Cannon reduced the lead with a point, which Stewart followed with another. Brett crashed through and a terrific drive by him was turned over the bar to make it level pegging. Then Tansey, who was rampaging from backs to forwards and beating all in his way, centred for Tuam to take the lead with a goal. Mountbellew had a short spell of attack, but Maloney broke up many raids. There was some scrappy football before Tansey centred a free for Mick Stewart to give Tuam a two goal lead at half time on the scores 2-4 to 1-1.

Mountbellew had an innings on the resumption and Fahy was making great efforts but again holding the ball too long proved a disastrous policy. The Mannions were always dangerous when they got going, but here Maloney, Corcoran, Wright and Grealish rose to the occasion every time. Gerry Maloney was a stalwart in the full berth and Wright played with a dash that was a tonic, while Grealish with his superb hands was safety personified. Tuam pressed in return but failed to score and when Fahy got a loose ball, he was away on the wing to place Mannion for Mountbellew's second goal. This put new life into their game and Fahy added a nice point. Tuam were disallowed a goal before Connolly sent over the bar. Mountbellew were back again from Fahy's kick and Mannion in possession was fouled for a penalty kick, which Fahy pointed. Tuam backs held off the Mountbellew men, though several short kicks out kept the goal in danger. Then Tansey appeared in possession on the half-forward line and raced in to punch in under the bar. Mountbellew kept pressing gamely, but Tuam had the game well in hand when the final whistle left them winners by 3-5 to 2-3.

Star of an all round good Tuam side was Tansey at centre-field. He played himself to a standstill and distributed the ball to the wings or centred on the square to keep the forwards well fed. With Burke to do the spoiling, they make a very successful centre-field pair. Mick Stewart was in rare form and put in an hour's hard football. Mongan as usual was a tireless worker, and T. J. Mooney, though the day did not suit him, was sound. Cannon hasn't got the feel of his boots yet, but he has lost none of the determination that is his hallmark. Christy Corcoran found the diminutive Mannion a tricky customer, but he got in some great clearances. Fahy was too elusive and fast for Tighe, who always tried hard.

Haverty, Heneghan, and Kelly were the best of the Mountbellew backs, and the Mannion brothers were always giving the Tuam defence an anxious time. Fahy was the outstanding man on the team, playing a right good game all through.

Tuam—M. Burke (goal), C. Corcoran, J. Connolly (capt.), G. Maloney, M. Tighe, M. Grealish, J. Wright, M. J. Burke, S. Tansey, M. Cannon, W. Birrell, T. J. Mooney, A. Mongan, P. Brett, M. Stewart. Sub.—J. Connolly (for Birrell).

Mountbellew—M. Kelly, M. Reynolds, L. Heneghan, M. Kitt, C. Haverty, P. Donelon, J. Glynn, M. Fahy, C. Kitt, J. Finn, M. Mannion, P. Mannion, F. Kitt, W. Kitt, F. McLoughlin.

JUNIOR HURLING FINAL.

Fohenagh emerged winners of the North Board Junior Final after an hour's hard hurling with Cussaun. They were superior most of the hour, but great back play and a splendid goalie kept the Cussaun goal intact. There were some great clashes around the centre and on the wings, and the game was played at a fast pace from start to finish. Though hurling was of the hard pulling variety, there was no very rough play, although tempers were short at times. Fohenagh should have put up a bigger score but dawdling with the ball in front of the goal frittered away great chances. It was here that the Cussaun backs' hard pulling saved their citadel many times. In the last quarter, however, Fohenagh added a couple of goals to win well.

ARCHBISHOP'S TRIBUTE TO L.D.F.

When Most Rev. Dr. Walsh, Archbishop of Tuam, arrived at Ballyheane to administer Confirmation, he was met by a guard of honour of the L.D.F. At the conclusion of the ceremony, his Grace complimented the men on their smart appearance, and paid tribute to the work they were doing for the nation.

COMMENT.

ENGLISH - SPEAKERS.

"WHO is the best English speaker on the screen?" That was a question I was asked shortly after this feature last appeared, when I made some references to the malpronunciation of the language. It is by no means an easy question to answer—but by the good old fashioned trick of "passing the buck," I have got a good selection. So now, the few I have asked who they think is the best English speaker on the screen will see the reason—I hope!

Actually, it would be very hard to pick out the best English speaker on the screen, as personal prejudices and the star system interfere with a strictly impersonal rating. Many of the small part players whose names we never know are away beyond the stars in their speaking voices. For myself, I should rate Leslie Howard as "tops" and I think few will cavil with that choice. Next I should place Basil Rathbone, whose tones and pronunciation must also rank him in the top flight. Those are my own choice, but others whom I have asked have supplied a list that would take up more space than can be spared. Sir Cedric Hardwicke was the straight vote from one man, while others chose Paul Lukas, George Sanders, John Barrymore, George Arliss, Charles Laughton, Robert Donat, Herbert Marshall — and the inimitable Arthur Treacher. Hardwicke is undoubtedly a fine speaker, and so is Mr. Arliss, but the slight foreign intonation must weigh against Paul Lukas, even though it makes his speech more attractive. Incidentally, he is a Hungarian—and quite bald! (not necessarily a racial characteristic).

"Typically British" might be applied to Saunders and Marshall, and one victim of my questionnaire says that the latter always seems to be about to sneeze. Robert Donat possesses a rather unusual voice, one with a certain musical quality which seems to appeal to a great many cinema-goers. The younger Barrymore is the only American in my list—sufficient praise. I've heard a man say that he went to see "Romeo and Juliet" twice just to hear Barrymore's imperious and electrifying "Tybalt!" before his duel scene with Basil Rathbone. Another American who might be included is Burgess Meredith, star of the screen play "Winterset," but his screen appearances are too infrequent to familiarise him with many fans. There are scores of others whose names escape me now, but those mentioned certainly represent a fair selection of the best male English speakers on the screen.

WHAT, NO WOMEN!

WHAT surprised me most in my rather unusual questionnaire was the fact that hardly anybody mentioned a feminine star in answer to the question. It seems that the men have the monopoly in what I always considered a woman's line—talk! Norma Shearer ranks as first favourite for the honour of best female speaker, and others mentioned were Merle Oberon, Greer Garson, and Vivien Leigh. Strange to say, no one mentioned Garbo, or did I ask the wrong people? Like the men, there are numerous women small part players whose voices are superior to the stars, but whose names rarely appear. Names we remember—but voices, no!

EMERGENCY ART.

THE printed word has always been the mainstay of all appeals, but in the publicity for the various emergency organisations, arresting illustrations and designs are superseding the long rigmaroles which few people read. Defence Forces advertising features a striking drawing of a soldier in a poster which certainly commands attention. The Red Cross, too, has some good publicity, notably the poster showing a Red Cross man standing beside a stretcher, with the slogan "He can't carry it alone." Signs of the times—even the culture we are ready to die for is doing its bit.

"HULLABALOO."

CAN you imagine that doddering old fool, Frank Morgan, in a song and dance act—or giving impersonations of Clark Gable, Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore? If not, see "Hullabaloo" at the Mall on Sunday night. For Morgan does all those things and more besides—even romance a la Boyer. The film gives him ample scope for his comic genius and he reaches new heights in that frowning, hesitating, absent minded idiocy which gets him into so much screen trouble. "Hullabaloo" is notable for many reasons, and one of them may be Virginia O'Brien, Hollywood's latest torch singing "find," who swings "Jeanie of the Light Brown Hair" in the film. Another musical contribution is the operatic singing of the young negro tenor, Charles Holland. "Hullabaloo," all in all, promises to be tip-top tentertainment.

A deputation from the Parish Council—Messrs. Jarlath Forde and James Moggan—came before the meeting and requested the Directors to consider the question of more tillage on Parkmore Racecourse. The Directors said they met Mr. Costelloe last week and they selected a further five acres of the arable land for tillage, subject to his agreement with the persons requiring the land.

Mr. Moggan—We think that some more could be procured.

After some discussion, the deputation and the Secretary inspected the land and agreed upon an extra five acres that could be tilled, and the Secretary was directed to ask Mr. Costelloe to meet Mr. Forde and himself to arrange for the tillage of the land.

The deputation thanked the Directors for the courteous manner in which they had been received.

Mr. John Quinn proposed a vote of thanks to the Directors and staff for their attention and interest in the Company's business.

Mrs. Cahill seconded and it was passed unanimously.

Mr. Quinn—I am glad to see the ladies taking an interest in racing.

Mr. Daly—Mrs. Cahill is a shareholder in the Company.

Mr. Cahill—I declare the resolutions passed and regret we have not a larger attendance at the meeting. This year has been the record of the Company's success.
